The forecast for the weekend was lousy, and I had no solid obligations on Friday. So I went out a day earlier than my usual, and promised myself that I'll work on Saturday.

Anyway, I bought a wetsuit and now I can paddle in cold water! The web says lake Ontario is about 5 degrees today, so the wetsuit was probably a good idea. But I didn't fall in the water, so I didn't get to test it.

I also have a new folding bike! So I folded it and carried it on the kayak, for the return trip. It was lovely! But I didn't take many pictures because the wind was strong and the water choppy. Perhaps the choppiest I've ever paddled in.

A little over 14km of paddling (I had a tracking malfunction, so I don't know the exact number), plus 17.3km return by bike.
